A photograph of the Hallgrímskirkja church in Reykjavík, Iceland, during a vibrant sunset. The church's distinctive dark, angular stonework is illuminated from within, casting a warm glow. In the foreground, a small, brightly lit Christmas tree stands on a snowy path. The sky is filled with rich orange and red hues.

A photograph of the Hallgrímskirkja church at sunset, similar to the one above. However, a large, stylized blue statue of a figure is positioned in front of the church, partially obscuring the view. The church's interior lights are visible through its arched windows, and the surrounding area is dimly lit by streetlights.
